FOREIGN OFFICE NOTICE.

FOREIGN OFFICE,
Honolulu, April 1, 1893.
His Excellency the President of the Provisional Government of the Hawaiian Islands has received an autograph letter of which the following is a copy:

GROVER CLEVELAND,
President of the United States of America.

To His Excellency
SANFORD B. DOLE,
President of the Executive and Advisory Councils of the Provisional Government of the Hawaiian Islands.

GREAT AND GOOD FRIEND:—I have made choice of James H. Blount one of our distinguished citizens as my Special Commissioner to visit the Hawaiian Islands and make report to me concerning the present status of affairs in that country. He is well informed of our sincere desire to cultivate and maintain to the fullest extent the friendship which has so long subsisted between the two countries, and in all matters affecting relations with the Government of the Hawaiian Islands his authority is paramount. My knowledge of his high character and ability gives me entire confidence that he will use every endeavor to advance the interest and prosperity of both Governments and to render himself acceptable to Your Excellency.

I therefore request Your Excellency to receive him favorably and to give him full credence to what he shall say on the part of the United States and to the assurances which I have charged him to convey to you of the best wishes of this Government for the prosperity of the Hawaiian Islands.

May God have Your Excellency in His wise keeping.

Written at Washington this 11th day of March, in the year 1893.

Your Good Friend,
GROVER CLEVELAND.

By the President,
W. Q. GRESHAM,
Secretary of State.

PLUNDERED!

THE THIEF BREAKS OPEN A TRUNK.

A Valuable Coronet Stripped of Diamonds and Other Precious Stones.

Kalakaua's crown has been robbed of its jewels. The theft was discovered on Monday morning when James Robertson turned over some property to the Government.

Ever since the monarchy was overthrown Robertson has been custodian of the Palace and everything was in his charge. The other day the Government decided to disburse with his services and his successor was appointed. The dismissed custodian was ordered to turn over all property in his possession to his successor, and while doing so the robbery of the jewels was discovered.

PARTICULARS OF THE ROBBERY.

The details of the sensational affair were hard to obtain and they are as follows:

Two Crowns, one formerly worn by the late King Kalakaua and the other by his wife, Kapiolani, were encased in a handsome plush box. They were kept in a vault at Bishop & Co.'s bank for a long time, but eventually the coronets were turned over to the Chamberlain at the Palace. Whether they were first handed to George Macfarlane or to Robertson it could not be learned last evening.

When the jewels reached the place they were placed in a sole-leather trunk, where they remained for an indefinite time. The trunk was kept constantly locked, and for safekeeping it was deposited in the Chamberlain's office, which is situated on the basement floor of the Palace.

When the trunk was brought forth on Monday it was found that the lock had been broken. The box containing the coronets had been opened and Kalakaua's crown had been robbed of its ornaments. All that was left of it was the velvet cap.

DESCRIPTION OF THE CROWN.

The crown was nearly oval in shape, and was ornamented with a Maltese cross at the apex and brilliantly studded with diamonds and other precious stones, and on either side were gold kalalo leaves. In the center of the cross was a large diamond about the size of a ten cent piece. It was taken along with a number of other smaller precious stones.

The Chamberlain's office was searched, and some of the filigree work was found in a small closet. Nobody knows who the thief is, but from a hurried examination made on the day the robbery was discovered, it is almost a certainty that it occurred during the old regime and not since the Provisional Government has been established.

A STRANGE COINCIDENCE.

The most curious portion of the affair is that the crown worn by Kapiolani was untouched and nothing else in the trunk was disturbed. It is a strange coincidence.

It will be remembered by old residents that the crowns were made in London at a cost of $5000 each. They were worn by Kalakaua and Kapiolani on February 12, 1883, when the late king was crowned. At the time the taxpayers of this country strenuously objected to the expenses of the coronation exercises, but their objections carried no weight and the expensive festivities went on.

Marshal Hitchcock will take up the case on his return from Hawaii to-day, and as there is a faint clue to the identity of the thieves he may be fortunate enough to capture them.

The Native Papers.

Bush's paper, Ka Leo, is responsible for the following:

There are certain rumors—that the Queen would be restored to the throne, and that the independence of Hawaii would be perpetuated, and that the royal ensign would wave again—these are included in Commissioner Blount's message to his government.

A renegade Hawaiian woman was urging the natives last Saturday to cheer the Hawaiian flag when it was restored.

GREAT EXCITEMENT.

A Fire Starts in the Steamer Mikahala.

The fire alarm was rung yesterday morning about 10:45 o'clock. In a few seconds afterwards Engines No. 1 and 2 were seen passing down Fort street at a lively rate. Cries of "Fire on the Mikahala" brought several hundreds of people to the I. I. S. N. Co.'s wharf at the foot of Fort street. When the engines arrived, the blaze was found to be well under control, so they returned without rendering any assistance.

It appears that 20 tons of fertilizers, put up in 150 bags, were placed on deck in the forward part of the ship. The name of the inflammable substance differs, according to downtown scientists. One gentleman calls it saltpetre, a guano specialist names it nitrate of soda; Captain Goodman, of the Robert Lewers, says it is muric acid of potash. Whether all these scientific terms mean the same thing or not, the experts could not agree; but they all say it is a dangerous cargo. The so-called saltpetre was carefully stowed on the forward deck on a temporary platform made of redwood boards, being specially built as a precaution against fire. A thick covering of tarpaulins was also carefully placed on the top and the sides, so everybody on board thought the cargo was perfectly safe. While the officers and men were busily engaged putting freight on board, one of them noticed smoke issuing from the saltpetre pile. Two good sized streams worked by the wharf donkey engine played on the fire for nearly ten minutes, but as the flames began to spread, Passenger Agent Wm. Ross telephoned the fire alarm. When the fire engines arrived, a detachment of sailors from the Boston was already on board helping to put out the fire by throwing overboard bags containing the substance. A boat's crew from the Naniwa also came but they returned on board their ship as the fire was already under control. By 11:15 A. M. or about thirty minutes from the time the smoke was first noticed, the last spark of fire was extinguished, the two streams from the donkey engine being successfully applied. A part of the redwood boards on which the substance was placed was scorched while several were completely burned up, but the deck of the vessel was unharmed. The balance of the saltpetre was removed on shore by command of Captains Campbell and Godfrey. Captain Chaney of the Mikahala was at the company's black-mith shop during the fire, and only learned of the impending danger to his ship when it was almost out. When he arrived the bags were being taken ashore.

After the trouble was all over Captain Peterson of the Pele related his experience on the Pele when a cargo of the same substance took fire at sea and the entire cargo was jettisoned to save the ship.

Captain Campbell seconded his story by giving a similar instance which took place on the Liholho some time ago. Captain Penhallow was an eyewitness years ago of an instance where 400 tons of saltpetre took fire in the hold of a vessel lying at anchor at Calcutta.

According to the steamer's people the bags caught fire last Monday on the wharf, but it was quickly put out. The twenty tons of saltpetre was shipped by H. Hackfeld & Co., and was intended to be used as fertilizer at the Lybne Plantation. It was valued at $2000. About one-fifth of the cargo was thrown into the sea.

The fire is supposed to have been caused by a spark from the donkey engine which is stationed on the wharf.

WEDDED YESTERDAY.

Charles H. Hill and Miss McLaren Married.

The wedding of Miss Marion McLaren and Charles H. Hill, one of the oldest employees of the Union Ice Co., took place yesterday morning at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Wm. McLaren, on Fort street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Beckwith. There were quite a number of intimate friends present who all joined in wishing the newly wedded couple a long and happy married life. Miss Annie McLaren and Mr. D. W. Roach were respectively bridesmaid and best man. Mr. and Mrs. Hill departed for the Hall for a trip to the Volcano. San Jose, California, will be their future home.

For the Good of Others

Rev. Mr. Williams Heartily Endorses Hood's Sarsaparilla.

We are pleased to present this from Rev. A. A. Williams, of the Silbee street Christian Church, Lynn, Mass.: "I see no reason why a clergyman, more than a layman, who knows whereof he speaks, should hesitate to approve an Article of Merit

and worth, from which he or his family have been signally benefited, and whose commendation may serve to extend these benefits to others by increasing their confidence. My wife has for many years been a sufferer from severe

Nervous Headache

for which she found little help. She has tried many things that promised well but performed little. Last fall a friend gave her a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. It seems surprising that such simple cure could do so much for her. Her nervous headache decreased in number and were less violent in their intensity, while her general health has been improved. Her appetite has also been better. From our experience with

Hood's Sarsaparilla

I have no hesitation in endorsing its merits. A. A. WILLIAMS.
